New Year calls for new resolutions!

Posted on January 18, 2017

With the advent of Twenty Seventeen, we at WhoisXmlApi are looking forward to further expanding our horizons in the domain industry. Last year we took some significant steps growing in the domain data space. Instead of just being a provider for various types of Whois Data, we ventured into providing solutions, so we can partner with our customers in simplifying their domain research.

In 2016, our first leap away from only dealing with domain Whois data started with the introduction of Website Classification Database which essentially categorizes and provides a database of over 100 million websites.

Besides that we also introduced Custom Reports wherein customers can get personalized reports, based on their business needs, on TLDs covering datasets falling under domain name, Whois and DNS category.

This was followed by accentuating our expertise in the domain Whois data area and creating Internet Retailer Database and All Registered Domains Database for our customers.

But our biggest endeavor is in creating holistic solutions for various industries that use Whois products and services. Over the past decade, slowly and steadily we have caught the pulse of what kind of data different industries need and basis that we have created customized solutions for the same. This year we intend to focus more on providing unified domain Whois data solution packages which can enhance efficiency & help conduct deep domain research with industry-specific solutions for our customers.

The various industry specific customized solutions packages we are offering at present are as follows:
